Key Points from DB Training:

1. Putting yourself in the children's shoes: At the beginning of the training you thought back to a time when you were seven years old and reflected on a mentor who guided you through a difficult time. How do you think going back to a challenge that you experienced at age seven might help you relate to a homeless child?

2. Homelessness: From what you've learned from this training and your previous experience, what do you imagine is one of the most challenging things for a homeless child to deal with?

3. Boundaries: Everybody has a different comfort level around setting a boundary with children. What do you think the importance of boundary setting is and what might be challenging for you around setting boundaries with children?

4. Do you have questions that weren't addressed by this training or ways to improve it?
